

DUAS QUINTAS BY RAMOS PINTO DOURO VALLEY, PORTUGAL

For those visiting Douro, it may seem a static region, but this is not true. This is a constantly changing region due to natural cycles, the agriculture, the time of year and, of course, the "will" of Man. And change can be seen in the landscape, the vineyards, the wine cellars, the generations working there and even in the wines. However, we never fail to recognize this Douro of extremes as a force of nature and of life.

THE NEW LABEL OF DUAS QUINTAS

We know that when the presentation of a wine changes, consumers become wary. As some people are not aware of the change they may think it is not the same wine, other people just feel uncertainty created by something new. So we try to spread the message in a clear and comprehensive way so that everyone gets to recognize the new image of Duas Quintas and like us, appreciate it. The image of Duas Quintas, a synonym for Douro, is now slightly updated. We did not touch its essence, nor the distinctive features that led to its iconic image. We have just simply made the message cleaner and clearer. This wine only needs its name and the quality assurance that Casa Ramos Pinto has accustomed the public to. We hope that this next bottle of Duas Quintas will win you over not only because of the excellent quality of a great Douro wine, but now also due to the authenticity of its image.

A HISTORY OF THE DUAS QUINTAS CLASSIC

The integration of Casa Ramos Pinto in the Roederer Group in 1990, finally brought to life a project initiated by João Nicolau de Almeida and José Rosas, in the winegrowing research in 1976, thus launching the Ramos Pinto red and white table wines. The first Duas Quintas, from 1990 was not only one of the first still wines of Douro's new generation sold in Portugal, but also a pioneer in exporting, thus making this region (already renowned for Port Wine) known to the world as a producer of quality still wines. Currently Duas Quintas is sold in over 80 countries in five continents.

We hope you enjoy it!
